B-IRON Handles

Features

When the cap is placed onto the tool, the cartridge stops heating immediately, data transfer is cut off and the tool is disconnected from the station. It turns off completely after 10 minutes of inactivity. This allows a greater saving of the tool's battery.

If the cap is correctly attached to the handle, the status lightband does not display any colour (no light).

When the cap is not in use, it can be stored on the cap holder, at the back of the charging base.
